Starkville Community Theatre set for revue

For the Daily News

The seasons of love and sounds of music are back by popular demand this weekend during the Starkville Community Theatre's Broadway Revue.

This summer SCT staged a 30 minute musical revue as part of its summer fund raiser, which also included a silent auction. The performance was so well received SCT officials decided to bring the show back by popular demand.

The revue will run for two nights only - Friday and Saturday - with a 7:30 p.m. curtain call.

Directed by Tom Daniel, an assistant professor of music education at Mississippi State, the 90 minute show will feature seven performers and a variety of Broadway numbers from countless musicals.

"We have a wonderful cast and each will be performing solos, as well as duets and group numbers," Daniel said. "The revue was a big hit this summer and we feel our audience will enjoy this new, expanded performance even more."

Daniel said the show will include several favorites from this summer's performance, including Seasons of Love from Rent and Being Alive from Company, as well as numbers not previously performed like Standing on the Corner, If I Were a Rich Man, Come Rain or Come Shine and On My Own.
